Dramatic Irony:

This is when the audience is aware of something that the characters are not. This can create humour or suspense and the dialogue or monologues take on a new meaning.

Examples

- In Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" the mourning lady Olivia quickly becomes infatuated with a messenger who is there to deliver news about his master's love for Olivia. This is a love triangle in itself, however, what the audience knows and lady Olivia does not is that the messenger is actually a woman in disguise who is in love with her master.
- In "Romeo and Juliet", Romeo drinks poison because he believes Juliet is dead. The audience is aware that Juliet is only in a drug induced sleep and will shortly awaken.
- "The Truman Show" is entirely based on dramatic irony because Truman doesn't realized the world around him is fake and has been created for a TV show in which he has been starring since birth.

THa ha ha, Biff, Guess what? Aver we go to the drugtore and the post oflice. fre going to the vel') to ght sufored.

Can you think of other shows, movies, plays or books that had dramatic irony?
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$ $\longrightarrow$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$

