Learning Standards	Skills to Master
You can ask the questions, gather and analyze the information and ideas, make decisions what it all means communicate your findings using effective and professional language	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>A. Find academic sources</li><li>B. Give credit to the source</li><li>C. Put more than one source together to make your points credible</li><li>D. Break down information into points and don't repeat those points</li><li>E. Find a way to communicate so someone can understand and remember</li></ul>

How this works:

This is a project that is designed to help you focus on finding and explaining a solution to a social problem you have researched. The first part is an assignment on finding a proper source that explains the solution you are researching. Use the questions below to complete the work.

Example: If you are looking at electric vehicles, you are looking at academic (not opinion-based) sources that explain what that electric vehicles solve as a problem in society.

Answer the following:

1. Describe your solution in one line

---

2. Expand on your one line description with one paragraph

---

---

---

---

3. Give the web address, name of the book, or magazine that you used to find this solution

---

4. Why did you choose this as your source?

---

---

---

---

5. Who came up with this solution?

---
